

Frank Schoeller

Chief Executive Officer (Germany & Austria)

Supporting Customer Operations with New Service

Frank Schöller has been the CEO of STAHLGRUBER Group, covering LKQ Europe's German region, since February 2020. Frank Schöller first joined STAHLGRUBER back in 1995 as Regional Director. He left the business to work with Akzo Nobel between 2010 and 2013, before rejoining STAHLGRUBER in July 2013 as Sales Director and seeing the business acquired by LKQ Corporation in 2018, and becoming Chief Sales Officer in February 2019. As CEO, he oversees the development and anchoring of the region, using his over two decades of experience to ensure STAHLGRUBER Group/LKQ Europe is the partner of choice for garages, wholesalers and tire shops.

” Transitioning from STAHLGRUBER Group as a single entity to being part of globally operating LKQ group of companies is helping to strengthen our offering for our customers by supporting their business operations with new services.

During his time at Akzo Nobel, Frank Schöller played a significant role in the sales development of the car refinish business unit for global performance coatings company Akzo Nobel. He was involved in the development and restructure of Akzo Nobel's Sikkens Germany, helped define and implement business strategy and additionally implemented a new customer relationship management (CRM) system.

With a masters in Mechanics and degrees in Business Economics and Business Administration, Frank Schöller is well placed to be a key architect in STAHLGRUBER Group's, and subsequently LKQ Europe's, success.