Ferdinando Imhof

Chief Procurement and Supply Chain Officer, LKQ Europe

Ferdinando Imhof has been with LKQ Europe since October 2016, holding a number of senior leadership positions during this tenure across procurement, supply chain and product. He joined as Vice President of European Supply Chain, then Chief Procurement Officer, and later Chief Product Officer. Today, he serves as Chief Procurement and Supply Chain Officer, with responsibility spanning procurement, supply chain and logistics across Europe.

In his current role, Ferdinando leads the strategic direction of LKQ Europe's procurement and supply chain activities, overseeing how products are sourced and how they move through the organization to support LKQ Europe's businesses across its operations and offer the right products to customers.

His previous roles within LKQ Europe have seen him establish the LKQ European direct procurement and supply chain organizations, implement a r pan-European supply chain plan, set up the business' European Production & Processing (P&P) Management organization and much more.

Prior to joining LKQ Europe, Ferdinando Imhof spent 20 years at spare parts distributor RHIAG Group before it was acquired by LKQ Corporation in 2016. He served as both group functional VP and CEO of companies within the group. During this period, Ferdinando gained extensive experience dealing with leading private equity firms as shareholders (CVC, Alpha, Apax), was involved in two IPO procedures, and directly participated in several bond issues in the international capital markets.

> Operating on a European scale as a distribution group requires the right products at the right time, for both the business and our customers.
